

Programme Overview

Life skills are essential competencies that aid individuals in navigating their lives and attaining enhanced social integration. These skills are often overlooked in formal educational mandates. However, to be good educators, faculty members must possess specific life skills crucial for success in their profession. Effective interaction, communication, and collaboration are crucial for the success of an organization. Through the analysis and comprehension of these criteria, individuals can utilise organizational behaviour to enhance the productivity and efficiency of the workplace. Life skills encompass various advantageous aspects of our lives, such as our values and ethics, the development of emotional intelligence and self-confidence, the enhancement of critical thinking, problem-solving, and decision-making skills, leading to Better Worldliness.
